Date: Thursday, 18 July 2019 1:24:56 AM

To whom it may concern:

Please amend the Dog Act to remove misguided, breed-specific language requiring greyhound muzzling.

There is no evidence to suggest that the compulsory muzzling of greyhounds provides any benefit to the community nor makes the community safer

- Western Australia's Dog Act is outdated and lagging behind the majority of other states who have already removed this requirement
- Globally, Northern Ireland is the only other country in the world that has compulsory muzzling laws
- Both the RSPCA and Australian Veterinary Association support the removal of compulsory muzzling laws
- The WA racing industry regulator, RWWA has also indicated they support the removal of this law
- Already over 4000 WA residents have signed petitions to support the removal of this law
- There is no evidence to suggest that by changing this law there would be any increase in incidents involving greyhounds

Given the high kill rate of ex-racing dogs Down Under, everything should be done to promote adoption, including letting people see just how wonderful these dogs are.

Thank you.

Isn't it bad enough that these poor dogs are kept in cages and muzzled except for the brief time spent racing and being bet on by bloated, alcoholics in the stands? Isn't it bad enough that thousands are killed when deemed not useful anymore. They are just sweet gentle dogs that never chose this life of being used as a motor. Please amend The Dog Act that requires muzzling of greyhounds in public. I adopted a Greyhound whose racing days were over at 3 years old. I went behind the scenes of that particular track (no longer exists) to get my dog. What I saw was horrific and forever embedded in my mind. Rows of cages on top of each other barely large enough for these dogs to stand or move around. Shredded newspapers as bedding and many had muzzles still on. And much more. Took him home gave him medicated baths to remove the fleas and hundreds of ticks. Then taught him how to go up and down stairs and walk on floors. He was the sweetest most gentle dog ever. He just loved affection. Never saw any aggression in him what so ever. And we walked him in public every day. These laws are not needed and are cruel to the dogs. Please amend the laws. Thank you for your time.

I urge you to change your laws requiring Muslims of greyhounds in public this puts a negative image on the dog as being dangerous as many also think the pitbull's are dangerous dogs are like people it depends on how they're raised and Kat if they're kept in a loving environment they reflect that you will never meet a more Colmur passive dog then a greyhound.

I just learned that according to the Dog Act, adopted ex-racing dogs (Greyhounds) are required to wear a muzzle in public. I am appalled that these poor, gentle dogs, finally taken out of the horrors of racing, are now being forced to wear a muzzle.

Greyhounds are gentle animals and invoking a breed specific legislation like muzzling, is in contradiction to the purpose of adoption. It is unfair to the dogs and lessens the chance of being adopted, as many prospective adopters will reconsider if their dog has to be muzzled each time they are walked.

Please, remove this unnecessary piece of legislation so that dogs can finally lead a natural life.

I would like to express my support for the complete removal of the section 33(1) of the Dog Act 1976 in relation to companion pet greyhounds - namely that similar to the recent changes in ACT, Victoria and NSW.

I believe companion greyhounds should be allowed to go muzzle free in public without the requirement to complete a training program. I support the removal of this law for companion pet greyhounds for the following reasons:

1. Greyhounds are kept as pets in countries all over the world muzzle free and there has been no increased incidence of greyhound dog bites to people, other dogs or animals
2. The RSPCA have found no evidence to suggest that greyhounds as a breed pose any greater risk than other dog breeds
3. Western Australia, South Australia and Tasmania are the only Australian states still with this law. All other states (VIC, NSW, QLD, ACT, NT) have removed this law
4. The view supported by veterinary behaviorists is that the behavior of a particular dog should be based on that individual dogs attributes not its breed
5. As a breed, greyhounds are known for their generally friendly and gentle disposition, even despite their upbringing in the racing industry
6. Muzzling contributes to unwarranted negative public perceptions about greyhounds and their suitability as pets, impacting adoption opportunities
7. There is no evidence that shows that Breed Specific Legislation such as greyhounds wearing muzzles is effective in preventing or reducing dog attacks
8. The current 'prescribed training program' is called the Green Collar assessment. As with any behavioral assessment, it only can provide a snapshot of an animal's behavior at a certain point in time. It doesn't recognize changes that may occur in a dogs behavior over time, which could be influenced by variety of factors. Its implied assurance may discourage dog owner from ongoing responsibility for their pets behavior developments
9. There is evidence that suggests that legislation that increases the responsibility of all dog owners, for example through higher fines, leads to a reduction in dog bites and increase in community safety

As a breed, greyhounds are some of the sweetest dogs on earth. The RSPCA and leading veterinarians agree that it's time for state law to stop discriminating against greyhounds. Given the high "wastage" (kill) rate of ex-racing dogs Down Under, everything should be done to promote adoption, including letting people see just how wonderful these dogs are.

Having owned greyhounds for the past 17 years, and as a retired veterinarian, I have see absolutely no reason to vilify the breed and make money for the racing industry by demanding that these dogs be muzzled in general. The greyhounds I've owned and worked with are, in my opinion, one of the least likely breeds to bite when threatened or hurt, preferring flight to fight responses. Please consider removing this part of the law. it serves no purpose with regard to public safety. [REDACTED]

It seems ridiculous to me that a muzzling law would actually specify Greyhounds, or any breed for that manner, to be restrained without exception like you're walking a wild wolf.

I have encountered a few Greyhounds in my time and never once felt unsafe in any way that felt like they should have been locked in a pen never mind muzzled. No singular dog breed has ever been so untrustworthy as to require muzzling as a whole without the need to psychologically assess the individual history or behavior of the individual. Personally I have, more often than not, felt more like the little dogs, such as Dachshunds and Chihuahuas, were the most likely to bite people.

I urge you to at least amend the law to include a standard test for each breed or individual to determine when they do or do not require muzzling either in public or any type of situation like visits or cage aggressiveness.

Why on earth would you have a law requiring greyhounds to be muzzled in public? It's absurd to think that an entire breed of any dog would require such a thing - but greyhounds? They are gentle and loving and want nothing more than to be with you. They are not aggressive.

Leash laws make sense for the protection of the dog and others who may be afraid of dogs. But never muzzling across the board.

Dear WA Department of Local Government, Sport and Cultural Industries,

Greyhounds are some of the loveliest and sweetest dogs on earth. As a breed they are very well-suited to urban living and highly adoptable. The RSPCA and leading veterinarians agree that it's time for state law to stop discriminating against greyhounds. Given the high "wastage" (kill) rate of ex-racing dogs in Australia, everything should be done to promote adoption, including letting people see just how fantastic these dogs are.

Greyhounds are kept as pets in countries like the UK all over the world muzzle free and there has been no increased incidence of greyhound dog bites to people, other dogs or animals. The RSPCA have found no evidence to suggest that greyhounds as a breed pose any greater risk than other dog breeds. Western Australia, South Australia and Tasmania are the only Australian states still with this outdated law. All other states (VIC, NSW, QLD, ACT, NT) have removed this law.

The view supported by veterinary behaviourists is that the behaviour of a particular dog should be based on that individual dogs attributes not its breed. As a breed, greyhounds are known for their generally friendly and gentle disposition, even despite their upbringing in the racing industry. Muzzling contributes to unwarranted negative public perceptions about greyhounds and their suitability as pets, impacting adoption opportunities. There is no evidence that shows that Breed Specific Legislation such as greyhounds wearing muzzles is effective in preventing or reducing dog attacks. The current 'prescribed training program' is called the Green Collar assessment. As with any behavioural assessment, it only can provide a snapshot of an animal's behaviour at a certain point in time. There is evidence that suggests that legislation that increases the responsibility on all dog owners for their dog's actions, regardless of breed, for example through higher fines, leads to a reduction in dog bites and increase in community safety.

Thank you very much for your consideration and I hope WA will follow the lead of other countries and States in Australia to help more Greyhounds be rescued and adopted.

Kind regard, [REDACTED]

Should NOT have to be muzzled when out with guardians on leash This prevents pleasurable interactions with flora and drinking water

dog breed muzzling reform

Please amend the Dog Act to remove misguided, breed-specific language requiring greyhound muzzling. Greyhounds, in particular, are unequivocally sweet and harmless, and muzzling them is completely unnecessary.

Thank you.

Stop racing them and muzzling terrified dogs. Animal abuse is NOT entertaining!
